Merchants feed city coffers, but get crumbs in return

By DAVID LELAND

THE CITY of Carmel has a deal with the business community that would make flashy entrepreneur Paul Laub's mouth water.

For an annual outlay of less than a quarter of 1 percent of the city's $7.3 million annual budget, or $10,017, Carmel takes in enough business tax revenue to compose at least 70 percent of its budget.

That's not counting the more than $300,000 taken in from parking fines and monies from gasoline and tobacco taxes.

In turn, the Carmel Business Association, the recipient of the funding, fields calls regarding Carmel that would otherwise be handled by city staff, serves as a visitor information bureau and attempts to entice tourists to the area — all with a staff of one (two half-time workers).

"I would imagine that the city would have at least four people to do what we do in this office," said Lee Chamberlin, CBA executive director. "It's absolutely ridiculous."

Chamberlin estimated that such a level of staffing could cost the city as much as $80,000 annually.

Despite volunteer efforts, the CBA office cannot stay open weekends or nights to assist tourists, which causes many visitors to find food and shelter in nearby Monterey.

Broken down further, it becomes obvious where the lion's share of the city's funding originates.

Carmel anticipated more than $2.7 million in hotel tax alone for the 1990 fiscal year, according to last year's budget.

Also, for the fourth quarter of 1989, Carmel received $39,321 in sales tax money, according to the state Board of Equalization.

"We (merchants) are the guys who are raising the money to fulfill the residents' desires," says Armand Zenopian, owner of Jewels of Carmel, referring to services offered by the city.

Persistent pleas from merchants for increased funding for marketing campaigns have fallen on deaf ears.

'We (merchants) are the guys who are raising the money to fulfill the residents' desires.'

— Armand Zenopian

"They (Carmel City Council) don't feel comfortable with bringing in visitors," says CBA President Kathie Ritter. "That's what a lot of towns do."

For example: Pacific Grove pledged its chamber of commerce $30,000 this year; Carmel Valley received $25,000 from the county last year; the chamber of commerce in Sedona, Ariz., about the same size as Carmel, received $75,000 last year to promote tourism; and Sausalito helped its chamber raise $250,000 to advertise and promote the town.

And while the City of Capitola allotted only $13,500 toward its chamber of commerce this year, it also budgeted $30,000 for a transit system to ferry tourists from city-owned property about two miles from the business district into the village, which effectively removes a portion of the area's parking woes.

CITY OFFICIALS bristle when confronted by merchants on the subject of increased funding.

WITH THE City of Carmel offering merchants only a fraction of money garnered from the business community, some merchants are beginning to question the equity of such an arrangement. Officials of the Carmel Business Association say the $10,017 allotted by the city doesn't even begin to cover the organization's $106,000 annual operating budget. (Graphic art by Laura Hamilton.)

"No one says we don't need tourists," said Mayor Jean Grace, during a recent CBA meeting. "I resent the fact that businesses say you (city) don't pay any money for tourists."

The mayor said that, for a city its size, there is a large police force because of tourists. The city also spends considerable amounts maintaining the city's capital projects and acquiring open space.

"I feel strongly that the city government's place is to promote health and welfare," says Grace, adding that by maintaining Carmel and purchasing open space the city is making the area more attractive for tourists.

The current administration's attitude is nothing new. In fact, the city council in 1982 denied allotting any money whatsoever to the CBA.

At that time Carmel City Councilman Frank Lloyd asked, "What the hell do they do, anyway?"

In 1978-79 the city provided, $2,750 to the CBA, in 1979-80 $2,860 and in 1980-81 $1,640.

Grace is firm that the job of bringing people to Carmel is not the city's.

"Your job is to promote your business," she told CBA members of what she believes should be their marketing strategy. "We (Carmel) should focus on maintaining quality of life."

Her message differs little from that of former Carmel City Councilman David Maradei, who, in 1982, said, "I'm not anti-business, but I believe the people who should subsidize the CBA are the businesspeople."

The $10,017 from the city represents only a fraction of the the CBA's $106,000 annual budget, which is augmented only slightly by membership dues and fund-raisers, such as A Taste of Carmel, which garnered $20,000 last year.

"Unless we make money (on fund raising) we go belly-up," says Chamberlain. "We're always in the red at the end of the year."

Many CBA members question the city's priorities come budget time.

Chamberlin cites last year's document which included a $15,000 grant for the six-week Carmel Bach Festival and a budget allotment of $105,229 for the Carmel Recreation Department and its staff of two.

While Ritter said the CBA is planning to ask the city for between $23,000 and $25,000 this September during budget hearings, that may be too little, too late to woo tourists away from competition in time for the holidays.

Ritter said the CBA has a marketing plan targeting the existing customer base of several local businesses, which would cost between $30,000 and $40,000.

Grace stressed that the city supports local businesses.

"I'm particularly aware of the healthy aspects of having good, small-scale business in your community," she said. "I'm cognizant of the necessity of keeping our businesses thriving."

But time is of the essence to generate winter revenue, and the CBA is attempting to fund the project through fund-raisers and donations.

Until several years ago, Carmel merchants and hotels merely had to open their doors and tourists would flock to the town from worldwide.

Now, cities, counties, states and entire countries have realized the financial benefits generated from tourism and have launched aggressive marketing campaigns.

Canada, Alaska, Colorado and Washington's successful marketing efforts are just a few of the locales that have taken a toll on Carmel merchants.

"The image is that we, the merchants, are laughing our way to the bank," laments Zenopian. "But 90 percent (of us) are just making a living."

IRONICALLY, THE city's charter, which calls for Carmel to be primarily residential, may prove to be the downfall of the quaint commercial district, as more and more smaller, independent shops leave.

Due to Proposition 13, which limits the amount of property tax government can levy, residents rely on commercial taxes to compose the majority of funding.

Fewer and fewer local businesses, which fit Carmel's image, are able to meet high monthly rents even during good times, but take away the tourist traffic in the winter months and many leave and are replaced by chain stores, such as Sharper Image, Mrs. Field's Cookies, The Nature Company.

"Downtowns going out of business is nothing new in America," says Zenopian, who is considering relocating. "People will put up with the aggravation for a while and just move on."

Resident-serving stores have all but disappeared in the past several years as rents have escalated and clientele has changed.

Zenopian charges that city officials enjoy pitting tenants and landlords against each other, which takes the focus off of them.

"They definitely abuse their power," he says, adding that city officials refuse to acknowledge that many merchants are operating at a deficit and may need a boost to stay in business.

Stop the bashing

Dear Editor:

I share the concern of many over the recent bashing of the NEA (National Endowment of the Arts). History provides frightening examples of what happens when censorship takes hold in a society.

One of the most severe critics of the NEA and of artistic freedom in general is Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina. Today, along with letters to our representatives in Congress asking them to fully fund the NEA without restrictions, I am sending a contribution to the outstanding candidate who will oppose Sen. Helms in November — Mr. Harvey Gantt, 700 E. Stonewall, Suite 655, Charlotte, N.C. 28202.

Please join me. Your help could make a great difference for the arts in America.

Residential design

Dear Editor:

The planning commission, over a year ago, submitted to the city council suggestions for revising the R-1 code, but to date there has been no revision authorized, either specific or general even though the present code has been in use since the Townsend administration.

Never, however, was there a reduction in building floor area proposed, only more careful design review and ways to reduce the apparent size and scale by setbacks and roof slopes. After the Torres Street debacle the planning commission initiated more careful design review even though it bothered Mr. Tescher and a few others.

This was achieving good results until our Dragon Lady, for no justifiable reason, destroyed the well-functioning design review committee of the planning commission. Mr. Tescher is correct in saying that it is not size that is obnoxious, but design. That can be guided without being rigidly controlled.

Common sense

Dear Editor:

In a back issue of a local weekly, engineer Thomas Pollack of Caltrans made a heroic effort at clarifying the dreadful plans for a totally inappropriate super-highway through Hatton Canyon.

However, the net result was only to highlight the ghastly, convoluted thinking of an engineering mind whose vision is clouded with the sole aim of speed and volume of traffic and bulldozing and blasting the way across the country — entranced by gigantism of size and the prodigal squandering of federal largess.

The study assumes that freeway demand must be met, but points out in effect that it can never be met. Freeways do have their place, though not in parks, along water-fronts, in wilderness areas, on prime agricultural soil or in this area.

Of course, the major proponents of the proposition are the usual assorted potent contractors, construction unions and political leaders.

Meanwhile, environmental despoliation, pollution and the compounding of carbon dioxide emissions all seem to be ignored. We proceed as though we are somehow excused from responsibility for this problem. We behave as if there were nothing wrong, no danger, no urgency. Such arrogance, such ignorance, such madness!

But now with the dawning of a new era, things have begun to change. More and more people are coming to understand that the predominant concerns of our time are the environment and preservation.

The era of wanton development, highway and military overkill is over.

Were it not for a handful of nature lovers, environmentalists and other rare citizens with vision and common sense, this calamity would long since have made a shambles of the little that remains of this peninsula.

The equation can be disarmingly simple if we so wish it to be. So let us give up the pipe dreams and get on with the widening of Highway 1 for the remaining 7/10 of a mile from the high school football field to Carmel Valley Road.

An exciting day

Dear Editor:

To Enid Sales and all her generous staff on the "Save The Murphy" and the City of Carmel — thank you for an exciting morning!

We watched the raising, travel and the setting down of the building and thought the christening really added sparkle to the day. The hotdogs, lemonade and popcorn was a thoughtful addition.

Now, Carmel, let's get on with making this event into a reality! I will help, will you?

Mindless rush

Dear Editor:

The debate this past week about reducing the allowable square footage in a Carmel home from 1,800 square feet including garage to 1,600 square feet including garage, absorbed the time and energy of many Carmel citizens, including mine, as I did not think to take my stepladder with me in order that I might hang in the window of the Carmel Woman's Club building and get a better view of the proceedings.

Given the importance of this new ordinance, I cannot help but wonder why the Sunset Center was not used in order that people could focus on the issues, rather than on their physical discomfort.

The speakers were courteous, well-spoken for the most part and even eloquent at times. There were clearly two opinions, but of the approximately 40 speakers, there was a slight majority favoring the current 1,800 square foot size. One speaker asking for a hand vote saw the vote about 2 to 1 favoring the larger size.

The petition from the Concerned Citizens for Adequate Living Space had over 800 signatures, all favoring the larger allowable house, but also favoring design review. It came out a bit later that 400 of these signatures were from registered Carmel voters. This petition was lightly accepted and then ignored when it came time to consider the actual motion, with Councilman Ken White taking care to point out that the name he saw belonged to a second home owner. I had been unaware that second home owners, many of whom have children and grandchildren and who pay property taxes, were not entitled to be considered in this matter.

As the council summarized their opinions, it became clear that everyone might just as well have stayed at home. There was absolutely no effort on the part of the council to effect a compromise which might have included a period during which design review could have been tried, an intermediate reduction in space, or even a varying scale for homes sizes depending on the topography and neighboring homes. There was simply a mindless rush toward a restrictive ordinance which includes the oversize lots on Ridgewood Road, which is just nonsense.

Mayor Jean Grace made a valiant effort to mediate by suggesting an increase in the setbacks with the current ordinance remaining the same. Mr. White loved this — he thought it was a terrific idea and would add this further restriction to the proposed reduction. Mrs. Barbara Brooks, who during her election campaign found no fault with current ratios, has had a sudden change of heart and initiated the reduction. No need to guess her vote. Mr. Jim Wright gave indications that while he was not totally in favor of the ordinance, he would go along with it unless he could be convinced that families with children were moving here or had moved here within the past few years. Mayor Grace and Councilman Bob Fischer voted to retain the current standard of allowable space.

Carmel residents had better be on hand for the second reading of this ordinance at the next city council meeting Aug. 7.

Who's kidding who about this being a representative government?

Phyllis Howard

Correct decision

Dear Editor:

The Carmel City Council is to be congratulated on arriving at the correct decision, in the face of strong pressure from realtors, spec builders and developers, limiting houses to a size and scale that will make it possible for them to "nestle" as Bruce Kibby suggested, into their surroundings. Our small lots cannot accommodate the out-of-scale, inharmonious houses which are allowed under the current code. The 45 percent open space requirement will be a major factor in the well-being of our urban forest.

This bold decision will forestall the turning of our lovely village into "Anywhere U.S.A."

Clayton Anderson

Smaller houses

Dear Editor:

Three cheers for the Carmel-by-the-Sea City Council, which passed an R-1 ordinance July 10 that will limit the gigantic houses being built on small lots and give more open space for trees and landscaping.

After much testimony, both pro and con, the battle was won by residents who supported less site coverage. However, we are now left with 57 houses already in the planning process which will be built under the old rules.

Let's hope that our planning commission will sharpen up that strict design review which they feel will make 1,800-square-foot houses look small and approve 57 reasonable-looking projects.

It would have been better if only the projects with complete plans had been "grandfathered" rather than the builders who had submitted no more than a piece of paper at the last minute.

Fund-raising foundation formed to support library

By FRANK GEORGE

THREATENED WITH major cuts in their budget from Monterey County, the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees has established a separate foundation for its fund-raising efforts.

In light of the news that the county may cut its share of the library's operating budget by 60 percent when its contract with the city ends in 1991, the board created the Carmel-By-The-Sea Public Library Foundation. The formation of a new foundation was recommended by Maria Gitin and Associates, a consulting firm based in Aptos.

"It wouldn't be prudent to sit there and wait for 60 percent of your budget to disappear," said Margaret Pelikan, library director. "The county has already cut our budget back by 30 percent over the past three years, and it is our biggest funding source."

Pelikan said even if the county doesn't cut the library budget, the library can still use money raised by the foundation for buying new books and to repair and maintain older ones.

Without the additional funding, the 60 percent cutback would force the library to charge $100 apiece for library cards, Pelikan said.

"A second foundation is a most effective vehicle for raising library funds," said Maria Gitin. "And the people on the board are skilled in investing and raising funds."

Jack Billwiller will be the first president of the new foundation and Joseph Chaffers will serve as vice president. Philo K. Holland, J. Randolph Elliott and Cecil Wahle are also members of the new foundation.

Billwiller and Chaffers are both members of the library board, and Wahle is president of Friends of the Library, a group which organizes an annual book sale to help fund the library. When asked why three of the foundation members also happen to belong to other library groups, Holland said, "The intent was to draw from a good cross-section of the community to develop the board. It would be unusual to me if the leadership on the new board didn't have anything to do with the library."

"I'm there because I'm president of the Friends of the Library," explained Wahle. The bylaws say, "the president of the Friends of the Library shall be on the Carmel-By-The-Sea Public Library Foundation." I'm there to keep information and money flowing between the two groups."

Billwiller said the foundation has two fund-raising plans for the library.

"We'll look for contributions from foundations and people who are willing to donate large sums of money," he said. "And starting in October, we'll ask people who use the library to make contributions to the book fund."

He added that the foundation also plans to reach prospective donors through direct mail and personal contact.

"I'm going to spend at least 10 to 20 hours per week on this," said Billwiller.

Currently, the library gets its funding from four sources. The City of Carmel pays for personnel and maintenance of the two buildings, which are on Sixth and Lincoln and Mission and Sixth streets in Carmel. Monterey County and the State of California pay for the cost of serving users from outside of Carmel, and the Friends of the Library generate about $10,000 annually from the book sale.

The library has 13,000 cardholders but only 5,000 actually live in Carmel. The surrounding unincorporated areas of Pebble Beach, Carmel Valley and Carmel Highlands make use of the library, and their usage is funded by the county.

"Few people realize the city of Carmel pays over $600,000 of the library's annual budget," said Gitin. "Those who live in the unincorporated areas don't pay any taxes on the library."

"It wouldn't be prudent to sit there and wait for 60 percent of your budget to disappear. The county has already cut our budget back by 30 percent over the past three years, and it is our biggest funding source."

— Margaret Pelikan

— Library director

Pelikan said 98 percent of the people who live in Carmel have a library card. "We don't ever want to have to charge people for their library cards," she said. "The only way to keep them free is to look for donations."

He's proof that culture and civic pride go together

By NANCY HILLS

ERUDITE, CULTURED, refined, and civilized.

Those who say Carmel has lost its cultural heritage have not met Jack Billwiller, a man who is living proof Californians can be courtly and gracious while maintaining their unpretentious sense of reality and down-to-earth good humor.

He is also proof that culture and civic pride and duty are not mutually exclusive. He has put in his time for the city of Carmel. While a lover of the theater and music — he is a member and former treasurer of the Carmel Chamber Music Society — he is most closely associated with the city's much-loved and much-used library.

While Billwiller and the Harrison Memorial Library are not exactly synonymous, they are certainly sympatico.

Appointed to the Harrison Memorial Library board in October 1985, he was chairperson from then until June 1988. It was during that period that the library board and city council settled on where to open the much-discussed annex.

The Park Branch opened in 1989 in the substantially remodeled Crocker Bank building, corner of Mission Street and Sixth Avenue, ending a story that started more than 20 years ago when the city began talking about expanding the library.

Prior to his time as chairperson, Billwiller spent two years as president of Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library, a library support group.

The time has come for another library quest. He is the newly appointed chairperson of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Public Library Foundation. The library foundation was formed to spearhead a fund-raising project to establish an endowment intended to free the Carmel library from the vagaries of public funding and, in particular, the county library budget.

The county, undergoing its own monetary woes, has announced that it will probably cut its subsidy to city libraries, an act that would eliminate money the Carmel library uses to buy books and finance much of its operation. The county has already cut the library subsidy by 15 percent and every year it is a guess what will happen.

Fund raising will probably begin after summer, Billwiller said, and things are just getting organized.

"We aren't running a campaign at this point. We need to be thoroughly and properly ready and our tax status perfectly clear," he said. "Also, we don't want to interfere with the Friends of the Library book sale, which is a very important event."

BILLWILLER IS certainly an appropriate person to champion the library's cause.

Most people who meet him believe Billwiller must be straight from Cambridge, Amherst or Harvard Square. Not so. He is pure Californian, born in Stockton.

He grew up in San Jose and there he stayed to get his degree in English from San Jose State

JACK BILLWILLER has served on the Harrison Memorial Library board since 1985 and is now the chairperson of a new foundation to raise money for an endowment fund to replace the threatened county subsidy. (Nancy Hills photo.)

University. He went on to the University of California, Berkeley — then called Cal Berkeley — for his teaching credential.

English, however, was a far cry from his original major — chemical engineering — an outgrowth of his knack for numbers. Billwiller, who almost takes figures for granted, said he has encountered a stereotypical aversion to numbers in his colleagues.

"I had a friend who in his college classes would close his eyes whenever the instructor put an equation on the board until he was sure it was erased," Billwiller recounted.

His own mathematical abilities have served him well throughout the years and made him a productive board member.

Billwiller graduated while World War II was in full swing and entered the Army in 1942. He spent his war years in the United States and during that time, he met and married his Canadian-born wife, Prim (short for Primrose.)

In 1946, he received an honorable discharge and began teaching English and literature at City College of San Francisco. He gained the post of Dean of Instruction and stayed there until his retirement in 1979.

Billwiller truly enjoyed his years teaching.

"I liked the students. Not everybody who teaches feels that way. I was really fond of them, as a group as well as individuals," he said. "Of course, I enjoyed teaching itself."

Billwiller added that literature was probably the subject he enjoyed teaching the most.

"Even (Robert) Browning," he said.

His students, he said, loved Shakespeare, as does Billwiller, liked or tolerated Francis Bacon and "hated Browning."

"I once was lecturing on Browning when a girl in the front row handed me a note. I took it expecting either a warning of something wrong or praise. She had written, 'This is the most boring lecture I have ever heard,'" he said.

He kept on lecturing — "they had to learn about Browning whether they liked it or not." The student ended up with a B-plus in the course.

"She wasn't a bad student, she was just a good judge of interesting lectures," he said.

Great writers are great fun to read and great fun to teach, Billwiller said, because of the wonderful way they use the language.

"What they wrote was frequently extremely opinionated and often biased," he added. "But that isn't something you can really hold against them. You get tired of 'unbiased' people, certainly I do. The world is full of unbiased people."

He also enjoyed being Dean of Instruction, an administrative post, primarily because he likes working with others and solving problems.

"I could deal with people and enjoyed dealing with them. I enjoyed getting some of the things done that I felt were important, or at least other people felt were important," he said.

Settling problems in a way that works "is always satisfying, which doesn't mean it goes your way. It doesn't. Sometimes you can bring peace to a place where there was open warfare before, which is also satisfying."

"That all makes me sound unbearably genteel and peaceful, which I am not," he said.

SINCE HIS retirement, Billwiller has continued his interest in writing and authors, combining that interest with his scientific bent.

He is currently researching working on computer programs that will be able to differentiate between writing styles. The program could analyze books, essays and written works to identify the author, useful when authorship is under dispute or for a work by more than one writer.

For his research he relies upon the Harrison Memorial Library.

Carmel's library was one of the reasons he and Prim retired to Carmel. He inherited a Carmel house from an aunt and he found the quiet town and its beautiful library very attractive.

"I think a library is terribly important, to be able to get at any book or information you need," he said.

Billwiller points out that through the Harrison Library's research connections, requested books can be ordered from all over the state — and beyond. He once received a book from a library in Las Vegas.

He believes the well-being of the Harrison Memorial Library is important to Carmel and the city is fortunate that it is as active as it is.

"There are lots of libraries in California that are closing or cutting back services," Billwiller pointed out.

One library in Northern California, without funds for staff, he said, just left the doors open and tried the honor system.

"Of course, it didn't work. The books were soon all gone," he said.

Billwiller is proud of the Park Branch, which houses the youth and children's section and the local history room.

"I think (the branch) is well-done. We didn't make any compromises. For example, everything is real wood, not wood veneer. We were fortunate to have a good interior designer and a good architect."

He gives former Mayor Clint Eastwood credit for taking the final action that ended the controversy of where to put an annex.

Along with his students that went on and are "doing well," he finds satisfaction in knowing he helped bring the library branch to fruition.

"When I saw a little girl in a wheelchair going up the ramp, I felt very proud," he said.

But it is now on to the next challenge.

Lindsay Hanna appointed to planning commission

By DAVID LELAND

PARLAYING SUCCESSFUL stints on various local commissions and committees, newly appointed Carmel Planning Commis-

"That's why we have a general plan and ordinances, so I can't sit there and play God."

sioner Lindsay Hanna is approaching his current post with a boyish enthusiasm.

Named on July 12 by Mayor Jean Grace to fill the position created by the death of popular commissioner Terry Thomas in June, Hanna says he will attempt to see both sides of issues during planning commission hearings.

"That's why we have a general plan and ordinances, so I can't sit there and play God," says Hanna, 66, who moved to Carmel from Connecticut via Southern California in 1984. "The commission is supposed to carry out the direction established in the general plan and to refine ordinances."

In fact, Hanna says he will attempt to carry on the open-mindedness exhibited by his predecessor, Thomas.

"I think he (Thomas) was a great guy; we became pretty good friends because of our political partnership," says Hanna, who worked with Thomas in successfully getting Dale Hekhius elected to the peninsula water board. "(But) it's not a question of filling somebody's shoes."

That may be so, but Grace said she was happy when Hanna filed an application for the position. "His organizational ability is amazing," says

Grace of Hanna, who served as her campaign manager in both of her mayoral elections ('88 and '90). "I know with that kind of ability he'll be able to plow through the homework that is involved with the planning commission."

Hanna says he expected no political favors from Grace when he made the application.

Says Hanna, "I told her, 'Don't appoint me because of our political relationship. Appoint me because I am a good candidate.'"

Hanna says he is prepared to study the city's general plan regarding complicated issues, but that he already has a working knowledge of the city's ordinances.

He adds that it is important to keep in mind the "letter and spirit" of the general plan when reviewing applications.

"We've got a good town here, we don't want to be too picky about it," says Hanna, who has resigned his seat on the Forest and Beach Commission. "We should have the willingness to approve reasonable variances."

Hanna says he will attempt to bypass passion and deal with facts in making his planning commission decisions.

"It will be a challenge to steer a course through the emotional sea," says Hanna of the recurring rift between residents, builders and the business community. "It's not right for a public person to be pro-resident or anti-business or anti-resident or pro-business."

HANNA SAYS he is enjoying playing an integral part in Carmel government, having had the same experience while living in Simsbury, Conn.

While working in a series of management positions for Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. in Simsbury, Hanna served on the government's board of finance, board of assessors and charter revision commission.

He first surfaced in Carmel when he became active with the beach restoration project in 1985, a citizens group which reported to the planning commission and Carmel City Council.

Most recently, Hanna has represented the Forest and Beach Commission before city representatives concerning general plan amendments for the residential district (R-1).

"I am strongly in favor of increased open space, which requires limiting hard surface coverage on residential lots," says Hanna, who has also served on the traffic and safety committee. "The traditional ambiance of Carmel's residential village in the forest is threatened today."

NEWLY APPOINTED Carmel Planning Commissioner Lindsay Hanna will be officially sworn in at the commission's July 25 meeting.

Trees, Hanna believes, make Carmel what it is. "If we lost all our trees, this would be one of the ugliest towns in California," says Hanna, who supported a recent ordinance which makes it necessary to secure a city permit before cutting down five species of trees measuring more than 6 inches in diameter.

Hanna says the next year will tell the tale for the residential district.

"During the next 12 months I would say implementation of new R-1 standards will be the main challenge for the commission," says Hanna, who will be sworn in during the planning commission's July 25 meeting. "There's going to be a lot of judgment required by the commission on what's appropriate and not appropriate for houses."

Joe Feldiesen leaves CHS post for new school job in Porterville

By DAVID LELAND

CARMEL HIGH School Assistant Principal Joe Feldiesen, an institution at the school since 1973, has left the district, prompting a statewide search to fill the vacancy.

Feldiesen, 48, will take over as assistant principal at the 1,700-student Porterville High School, located in the San Joaquin Valley midway between Fresno and Bakersfield, this fall.

'It's the challenge and excitement of something new. There's very few places I would consider leaving Carmel for.'

— Joe Feldiesen

As many as 100 new students are entering Porterville High School each year, as opposed to Carmel High School, which has a constant enrollment of 650 students.

"It's the challenge and excitement of something new," said Feldiesen, who began his tenure at the high school coaching basketball. "There's very few places I would consider leaving Carmel for."

Feldiesen's departure is a bittersweet one for CUSD officials, who are well aware of how difficult it will be to replace the popular assistant principal.

"He's one of the most caring individuals I've ever worked with," said Principal Marie Ishida, who will conduct interviews for the position during the first week of August. "He really cares about kids and their well-being. I definitely will miss him."

As assistant principal, Feldiesen's responsibilities included student discipline, attendance and staff supervision.

"He knew his job and did it extremely well," said Ishida, who took over as principal in 1986 after Feldiesen filled the position for a year. "Whenever I would give him a task to do I never had to worry whether it would be completed or not."

Even with a new environment and hefty pay raise, Feldiesen said that the decision to leave the high school has been a difficult one.

"The hardest part is that I have a lot of fond memories," said Feldiesen, who maintains contact with a large number of his past students. "This is a great community and absolutely great kids."

Sharon Bays, Feldiesen's wife, will continue to teach social studies at the high school, until she finds a job in Porterville.

RAISED IN Salinas, Feldiesen came to the district via Salinas' Palma High School; he began coaching various sporting teams for the district.

He continued coaching after being named assistant principal in 1979, but concentrated solely on administration after 1983.

"I enjoy helping kids," he said. "I've seen a lot of positive things happen, like kids growing up and being successful."

Feldiesen said, unlike Carmel where there are any number of community events, school in Porterville has a high profile.

"School there is the focal part of the community," he said.

As an example, using money raised from the community, the school recently sent about 250 bandmembers and 67 adults to the East Coast.

While there, musicians became the first band from the area to play Carnegie Hall.

But Feldiesen said he in no way plans to abandon his alma mater, and will return for crucial sporting events.

"I'll be back," he said. "I won't be gone forever."

AFTER 17 years of service, Carmel High School Assistant Principal Joe Feldiesen is

Water board to discuss wilderness land swap with feds at next meeting

By FRANK GEORGE

THE PENINSULA water board will further explore the proposed Los Padres Dam, hold a public hearing on a proposed increase in the district's water bill surcharge, and discuss increasing water rationing for peninsula golf courses at its July 23 meeting.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board of Directors will meet at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 23 at the Monterey City Council Chambers.

A first reading of an ordinance that would increase the water bill surcharge is on the agenda, as well as a briefing on the Los Padres Dam proposal.

The Los Padres Dam would block a portion of the Carmel River, flooding 3.9 acres of national wilderness. Because this is prohibited by the National Wilderness Act, the water district and Rep. Leon Panetta have proposed a land exchange to solve the problem.

"We have proposed a land exchange whereby the federal government takes 50 acres out of the wilderness and gives it to us. And, in return, we (the water district) give the federal government 100 comparable acres to add to the wilderness," said water board Chairman Dick Heuer.

The 100 acres would be bought from Cal-American Water Co., according to a memo circulated by district general manager James Cofer.

The proposed dam has three goals: drought protection, accommodating planned growth, and restoring the Carmel River environment, according to the memo.

"Due to the drought, the steelhead and water-side vegetation populations have decreased," explained Heuer. "The dam would provide adequate flow during most years, and this would help solve these problems."

Also at the meeting, directors will hold a public hearing on Ordinance No. 50, which calls for greater rationing from peninsula golf courses.

Last year, water district communities logged a 30 percent savings of water, whereas local golf courses only reduced their consumption by 15 percent. Heuer said many residents are annoyed at the sight of lush green fairways when their own lawns are brown and dry.

As a result, said Heuer, "we are imposing a 27 percent water savings for golf courses on the peninsula. They will be rationed as a group, and they will allocate savings according to need."

Heuer, himself a golfer, said some of the courses need more water than others because of differing soil requirements. He said the recently formed Golf Course Association (a group of golf course operators), has known about the ordinance and has, since April, been voluntarily cutting back.

"The impact on the golf courses is already visible," Heuer said. "The areas that have been taken out of watering are already brown."

In another public hearing, directors will consider the so-called Retrofit Program.

About 40 percent of household water is used in toilets, according to Heuer. "We're considering a program that would provide financial incentives for everyone to replace their toilets with newer, more efficient toilets," he said. Heuer said the incentive would involve a rebate on the cost of water-efficient toilets.

In other matters, a public hearing will be held on Ordinance No. 51, which would triple the water bill surcharge, a funding source for the rationing program.

The hike would be from 2 percent to 6 percent. Heuer said the water-rationing program was running at a financial deficit. A citizens' committee audited the program and recommended improvements in staffing and equipment.

"This surcharge will fund the improvements," said Heuer. "These improvements include additional computers, additional office personnel and changes in procedures."

The number of hours the average American works each week has risen from 40.6 hours in 1973 to a current 48.8 hours.

John Prejean remembered fondly as kind and loving by his friends

By SUSAN BECK

YOU CAN be anything you want to be, just as long as there's truth behind your smile.

"John told me that many years ago. He made me believe in myself," said John Macy, longtime friend of musician John Prejean, who died last Tuesday in an automobile accident at the top of Palo Colorado Canyon.

Prejean, 44, an actor, songwriter, and musician on the Monterey Peninsula since the late '60s, always had truth behind his smile and was just about to achieve what he wanted to be, a nationally known songwriter, said Macy.

The native of New Orleans, La., had just released his first album, titled Open Hearts, in February 1990. He recorded five singles, produced by his manager, Brian Gingerich and musical producer, Harold Cowart in Louisiana, just before returning to Carmel Valley this month to be with a friend, Gordon Kramer, who was dying of cancer.

"I don't have a better friend than John," said Gingerich. He created his production company, Gingerich and Associates to promote Prejean's music. He was the first person that Gingerich met who had the heart and vision for a long-term goal.

"John's music reflected the values that I wanted to express to the world. He exemplified human kindness and unconditional love," said Gingerich.

Harold Cowart, in a phone interview from his home in Prairieville, La., said that Prejean was a great songwriter and a pleasure to work with.

"He was walking sunshine, he was always smiling," Cowart, owner of Bluff Road Productions in Prairieville, located between Baton Rouge and New Orleans, has worked with artists such as Barbra Streisand, Kenny Rogers, and Jerry Lee Lewis.

Cowart thought Prejean deserved a shot at the national level, and is planning to use some of Prejean's songs on a new album titled Southern Boys with John Fred, G.G. Schinn (Louisiana's boogie king), Floyd Brown, and more of the South's top performers.

Music was not always Prejean's main focus. After receiving his drama degree from Louisiana State University, he moved to the Monterey Peninsula to work for the former White Oaks Theater in Carmel Valley.

Prejean lived in Jamesburg, and it wasn't long before he formed the Jamesburg Players to raise money to buy property and build a school for the children in the community.

Macy and Clem Savoldi became friends with Prejean about that time, and he encouraged them to join the group. Savoldi didn't have a clue about acting, but Prejean told him that all he had to do was, "know what your direction is and go with it." He told Savoldi that what he knew and did was invaluable to the players. "He helped me understand my worth."

'John's music reflected the values that I wanted to express to the world. He exemplified human kindness and unconditional love.'

"John would tell the cast before a show, 'OK folks, let's go out and play, let's have fun,'" said Savoldi. "He made you believe that you were actually out there on stage making people happy. He never argued with anyone, ever. He had a karma that you would not believe, and a tremendous charisma."

Savoldi and Macy organized the musical tribute and gathering held at Hidden Valley last Friday as a going-away party for Prejean. Sometime in the future they want to have another musical tribute with local musicians to raise money for a trust fund for Prejean's daughters, Michelle, 14, and Lucia, 16.

Both Savoldi and Macy agree that Prejean has always been blessed with love and insight: "He's with us. We love you, John."

Donations for the trust fund can be sent to Wells Fargo Bank, Carmel Valley Branch, ITF Michelle and Lucia Prejean, Rio Road, Highway 1, Carmel, Ca., 93923.

Valley said not to oppose low-income housing

By SUSAN BECK

IT'S JUST not true. Carmel Valley residents are not against "affordable housing."

Roger Williams, board member of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CPVOA), said he has never detected any objections by the Carmel Valley community to low-cost housing development.

At the July 11 CPVOA board meeting, Williams reiterated his response to developer Richard Prior's statement that Carmel Valley is an elite community, and the locals don't want low-income people living in their neighborhoods.

Williams reported to CPVOA board members after attending an earlier meeting of the Monterey County Planning Commission, which voted down Prior's proposal for a subdivision on the 473-acre Holt Ranch, located south of Carmel Valley Road, just west of Robinson Canyon Road.

Prior's plan includes 140 condominiums, of which 105 would be available to people with low to moderate incomes, the remaining to be sold at market rates. Also, there would be 70 estate-sized lots, ranging from 1 to 30 acres, for sale.

Prior is convinced that there is a crying need in Carmel Valley for this type of housing and plans to appeal the decision to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, said Williams. He agrees that there is a need for low- and moderate-income development, but does not think that Prior's plan is the way to go about it.

The plan would burden the existing traffic and water supply problems even more, and the subdivision would be in one of the most visible locations in the valley, said Williams. Development would cause severe landscape damage, and "does not reflect the best use of the Holt Ranch land," he said.

The best use of water, and its management, at the local golf courses was also discussed. Robert Greenwood, board member, brought up a new ordinance by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) designed to apply to all golf courses during Phase III rationing, effective Oct. 1, 1990.

The ordinance requires a cutback of 20 percent every three months with a total of 27 percent over the entire year, but applied to golf courses as a whole, not to individual courses. Greenwood said that no other group of users has such a "privilege" and speculated on the prospect of conscientious operators making up for those who are not so careful.

For example, said Greenwood, nine courses on the Cal-Am water system in the 1989 calendar year used about the same amount of water as four Carmel Valley courses, but the valley courses made substantial savings this year (by 10 percent), over those on Cal-Am's system.

However, Carmel Valley Ranch attributes their savings to the use of reclaimed sewage. It is not clear why they didn't show a reduction prior to 1988, said Greenwood, "weren't they using reclaimed water then, too?"

Carmel Valley courses claim to need 3 acre foot per acre a year, even though their base usage is much less, said Greenwood, to offset the climate differences of other courses on the peninsula. For instance, the Monterey Peninsula Country Club golf course is able to ration up to 40 percent, but the course is located in an area that has considerably more moisture throughout the year.

The ordinance has a detailed system of penalties and fines (never in excess of $11,000), and variances if usage for more water is unavoidable. There will also be a forgiveness of penalty if excess is established to be beyond a user's control.

Greenwood discussed the validity of the ordinance's individual penalties and variances, if only the recently formed Golf Course Association (GCA), as a group, has to meet rationing quotas, and the MPWMD's legal ability to enforce anything on the GCA.

CVPOA board member Patricia Bernardi said that essentially some golf courses make tremendous efforts to maintain their greens within the allotted quota, and suggested the CPVOA support permanent reductions for those courses that do not.

Another concern is the intent by the MPWMD to apply the new ordinance across the board to hotels and restaurants, said Bernardi, thereby reducing the water district's responsibilities and letting individual groups work out their own water problems.

The board consensus supports water reduction enforcement for individual courses rather than as a group because there are too many possible exceptions for using more water and then asking for "forgiveness." Besides, said Bernardi, "Carmel Valley will not comply."

Arriving at a consensus as to the reasons why the Monterey County Department of Planning and Building Inspection is in an absolute crisis was not as easy.

Generally, it appears to be a 50-50 management versus resources problem, said Max Chaplin, CVPOA president. Without sufficient funds, the department suffers staff shortages, and without an adequate staff, inefficiency increases, he said.

County planning head Robert Slimmon, Jr., director of one of the most powerful agencies in the county, readily admits to a hands-on approach rather than managerial and is harshly criticized for it, said Bernardi. "I don't think money is the answer."

"It's enough to say that the department is in a disaster and needs to be addressed by the board of supervisors," said Chaplin.

The CVPOA meeting closed with a recommendation to "support on condition" additional funds for the planning department as long as the department's management is revised.

John Bigham scores his first win as pro driver at Watkins Glen

JOHN BIGHAM of Carmel made it a clean sweep as he captured the pole position and a win in the Barber Saab Pro Series race at Watkins Glen International Circuit in Watkins Glen, N.Y. recently.

This marked 29-year-old Bigham's first pole and first win in the International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) sanctioned series. Amazingly, he had never even seen this historic 3.377-mile 11-turn track until he arrived for practice on the Friday before the race.

"I knew it was a fast circuit with good banking in the turns," Bigham said. "That's exactly the kind of track I like, so I felt pretty good about this race."

It was not as easy as it appeared, however. Bigham completed only two laps in the first practice session on Friday when a hose clamp came off of the engine's turbocharger and blew the hose right off.

"Nothing too serious," he said, "but it was too late to get the car back out for that session." He was a mere 18th fastest of the 21 cars entered. "At that point I thought, 'Great, now I really have got my work cut out for me.'"

As cloudy skies threatened overhead, a ray of hope lit Bigham's way. "After only completing those two laps, I set the car up by just guessing what I thought it would need for this type of fast track." That change before the first qualifying shaved over 4 seconds off his lap time, moving him up to 10th fastest.

Halfway through the final qualifying session, Bigham stopped to make one last adjustment.

"I noticed the car had a push, so we changed the shock settings and it cured it. It worked really well."

Bigham had conquered the track and the competition, placing his Saab-powered race car in the top starting spot for Sunday's 35-minute race.

Come race time, Bigham continued his conquest. Leading all but two of the 19 laps, he breezed to a 2.185-second victory over second-place finisher Rob Wilson of Brentford, England. Wilson has won five of the six previous Barber Saab races in 1990. Bigham's best 1990 finish prior to this win was a third at Heartland Park in Topeka, Kansas. His dominance at the Glen proved just how competitive he can be.

The pole and the win catapulted Bigham from ninth to fifth in the series Driver Championship points and from seventh to third in season earnings to date. He also enjoys the honors of being the first American driver to capture a win in the series in 1990.

The Barber Saab Pro Series featured equally-prepared single-seat race cars, placing an emphasis on driver talent. As the 1989 Jim Russell Championship Series champion, John Bigham knows what it takes to win. With this win in the Barber Saab series, he has demonstrated that he can beat the rising race stars of tomorrow, and expects equally impressive victories to follow.

"You see too many young drivers moving up into faster cars too soon," Bigham pointed out. "I just want to gain more racing experience and become the best I can be through that. My goal is to drive Indy cars."

Funding his race career entirely by himself so far, Bigham looks forward to signing on a corporate sponsor soon. With the Barber Saab Pro Series one of the most marketable series in North America, and with Bigham one of the hottest drivers in the series it only seems natural. "I am confident that my background in business will make me a strong corporate representative," he said.

Next stop on the series schedule was Sears Point International Raceway in Sonoma on July 15. Bigham made his Barber Saab racing debut at Sears Point last September, finishing a respectable third in a field of 22.

"So far this year I've had to learn every track I've raced on," July 15 also marked Bigham's 30th birthday.

WHY SO MANY VOLVOS WILL LIVE TO BE A MILLION.

For almost any car, 100,000 miles is a lot. But, 1,000,000? Astonishing as it seems, many a Volvo is purring along toward that awe-inspiring mileage. Why do Volvos perform so well, so long?

There are two reasons. First: Volvos are very well built to begin with. Second: Volvo owners know enough to insist their cars get regular service from an authorized Volvo dealer.*

Authorized Volvo dealers are better equipped to service Volvos of any vintage. They have factory-trained mechanics, Volvo diagnostic equipment, special Volvo tools and a direct pipeline to Sweden for the latest technical information. It all adds up. And what it adds up to is hundreds and hundreds of thousands of miles of trouble-free and very safe motoring.

When a Volvo is all Volvo, it works better longer. And retains more of its value, should you decide to sell it. That's why it pays to insist on genuine Volvo parts from an authorized Volvo dealer. Because your Volvo, too, could live to be a million.

Another view

Dear Editor:

You've heard the old saying, "I've got mine, now you get yours the best way you can."

That's what three of Carmel-by-the-Sea city council members are telling you when they voted last Tuesday at the monthly meeting to limit any new home building or add-on to 40 percent coverage, which is 1,600 square feet on lots of 4,000 square feet.

Now you know everyone living in Carmel does not have the money it takes to build or add on to 1,800 square feet at present or any given time. They might still be working trying to get enough money together to build at a later date.

One couple living on our block has two children going to college and cannot build at this time as all their money now goes for their children's education. One day that will pass and they will want to build a three-bedroom home and have their son and daughter come visit them, possibly with children. They will not be able to build a large enough home for themselves and children as they would not be able to build a large enough house to take care of their family with only 1,600 square feet. So don't penalize them by lowering the square footage.

I'll bet the three city council members that voted to restrict the 1,600 square feet all have homes larger than that, so maybe they should be restricted from voting on this ordinance because of conflict of interest.

I've not met a resident that goes along with the ordinance lowering the square footage yet, have you?

Maybe if no one wants less footage and it gets passed anyway, it may be grounds for a recall. What do you think?

Let's hear from people that do not want the reduced footage. You can bet the ones that want reduction will be heard from!

Charitable Realtors

Dear Editor:

On Friday, June 29 the local Carmel Board of Realtors and their Affiliate Members hosted the Ninth Annual House Open Golf and Tennis Tourney to benefit local charities. This year the chosen charities were: Family Resource Center, Monterey County Special Olympics, Suicide Crisis Prevention, Monterey County AIDS Coalition, Alliance on Aging and Fridays Child.

Tennis was played at Del Monte Hyatt House and the golf, dinner, awards and dancing was at Rancho Canada. The Realtors Affiliates are made up of companies associated with the housing industry such as: lenders, mortgage companies, escrow and title firms, pest control firms, contractors and material suppliers.

This year was a record with nearly twice the proceeds of the previous year. The House Open Annual Charity Tourney has become the single largest fund-raiser for local charities which the realtors of Carmel and Monterey support. Realtors also actively support every year the Tor House Foundation, Red Cross Blood Bank, High School Scholarship Fund, Christmas Cart Tree, and other local charity events.

Many people have expressed less than favorable comments about realtors and their activities within the political arena, what the average person does not realize is that realtors are like everyone else, they are caring, giving local homeowners, business persons who give back to the community more than they take out with publicity or expectation of praise. I wanted to let everyone know that the local real estate professional is hardworking, dedicated and committed to betterment of the area in which they live and work.

I am proud to say that on July 12th, it was my pleasure to give out checks totaling $11,000, the proceeds of this year's House Open.

Spirit of pride

Dear Editor:

The only thing I can add to the flag burning controversy is this:

The issue is not whether or not flag burning should be allowed as part of freedom of expression. The issue is that it would even occur to anyone! Thirty, 40 years ago, such an act would have been unthinkable!

During that time, however, respect for America, both here and abroad, has deteriorated to such an extent (much of it with good reason) that it's frightening.

The real, overall issue is how to get back on track, how to revitalize the spirit of pride for this country and its flag and regain the prestige and respect we have lost — and are still losing.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

It's not broken

IT IS an old and common statement, "If it's not broken, don't fix it." but it is one with which we ought to renew our acquaintance these days.

The Constitution is not broken. It has been functioning satisfactorily for 200 years and has suffered only occasionally from misrepresentation of the nation's interests. Yet, in the Reagan and Bush administrations there has been a rash of proposed amendments to that document, none of which, upon close inspection, pass muster as good law or good sense.

Among the more politically popular attempts are a "line item veto" for the president, the banning of abortion, outlawing flag burning, mandating a balanced budget and limiting the terms of congressman and senators. Political popularity has, in fact, more to do with these amendments than does courage or conviction.

The flag burning issue is a case in point. Even George Will, who normally manages to uphold a reasoned approach to political issues, has jumped into the deep end on this one, declaring the court to be "miseducating" the nation as to the intent of the Founding Fathers. Will contends that "free speech" is specific and cannot by extension be interpreted to include "expression." Burning the flag in Will's view is not "speech." This is an intellectual argument which is certainly worth airing, although acceptance of such an argument severely limits the citizens' right to protest. Going a step further, by amending the Bill of Rights in this case, is unworthy of Will's intellect.

Less admirable is the position of Lee Atwater, national chairman of the Republican Party, who warned no Democrat could oppose such an amendment and be re-elected. Hogwash! The American people have already demonstrated a coolness toward tampering with the First Amendment and there is no demonstrable support for such an amendment among the majority of voters. Still, Bob Dole, the Senate minority leader, remarked several weeks ago, any Democrat's opposition to such an amendment "would make a good 30-second spot." The Senate quickly dismissed the amendment with a substantial number of Republicans supporting the Democrats.

Nevertheless, other more opportunistic politicians refuse to let go of the issue, hoping to hide their own inadequacy behind the red, white and blue. In California, Republican State Sen. John Doolittle, who is running for Congress, is airing television commercials showing himself and an American flag, and vowing to protect its "sanctity," if elected. It would all be so touching but for the man's record. This is the same Sen. Doolittle who was the subject of a Fair Election Practices Commission fine for dirty campaign tactics and who avoided the draft during the war in Vietnam by registering as a divinity student. How is it that the loudest political saber-rattlers, such as Doolittle, Quayle, Safire, et al, found ways to avoid serving in Vietnam? Patriotism is still, in the words of Samuel Johnson, "the last refuge of scoundrels."

In Louisiana two weeks ago, the legislature passed an anti-abortion bill, which while severely punishing doctors who perform abortions (10 years in prison), conveniently avoids the more emotional issue of punishing the woman who requests it. The large Roman Catholic and fundamentalist population of the Bayou State makes such a law appear quite popular, but the sudden outpouring of resentment from nearly all women voters now makes a gubernatorial veto a possibility. Meanwhile, the once self-righteous Republican national leadership, in the past adamantly and fundamentally opposed to abortion on purely "moral" grounds, is scattering to the hills hoping to avoid the pro-choice backlash. Bush, Atwater, Dole and company have been noticeably silent of late on the issue of a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion. Perhaps, it no longer appears quite so politically "moral."

The mandatory balanced budget amendment, so earnestly desired by Bush, and which will be reviewed by the House this month, deserves an equally ignominious death. It has more holes in it than the Titanic. Attaching a farce such as this one onto the Constitution, the intent of which is to allow Congress and the president to avoid their responsibilities, would be a perversion of the process.

Constitutional amendments are not so much required as is leadership. Unfortunately, with a professional bureaucrat in the White House and too many wafflers in Congress, "leadership" is in short supply. No one wants to share responsibility for the S&L or the HUD mess, and in the former there is plenty for both parties to share.

Bush said during the campaign, women should not have to choose between family and a job because of a lack of child care facilities. Last week he declared child care was not an area in which the government should involve itself as he vetoed the child care bill. As the president saw the decline in the auto industry, the real estate market and increasing corporate layoffs, he was able to, at last, face reality and talk about those dreaded words, "revenue enhancement." These factors seem to have accomplished what the plight of the homeless, the growth of the deficit (net interest alone is now $175 billion), rising unemployment, a lagging space program and environmental devastation could not.

With such thinking is it any wonder these people turn so eagerly to the concept of constitutional amendments to avoid responsibility? We appear condemned by our own votes to endure the continuation of a prolonged age of mediocrity in government. Let's not make it worse by allowing the mediocrities to pass the buck to a piece of paper.

CBA-city

"They just look at the income they get and they say 'things are beautiful in this town, why change?'"

Zenopian also believes that City Administrator Doug Schmitz intimidates those who want to see Carmel take a different approach to the business sector.

"The whole system there is run by fear and centralized power," he said. "The man has his hands on every department."

Meanwhile, Grace chided the CBA for not coming before the city council and joining in the process.

"The CBA has power that you never use; I don't understand it," she said. "The CBA needs to get its act together — get something on the agenda."

Traditionally, the CBA has stayed clear of the political process because the majority of business owners live outside of town.

But under the leadership of last year's CBA President Barbara Simmons, the group began to make its presence known.

But like most large organizations, there is no strict consensus on where the commercial district is headed and what it truly wants from the city.

"What do we want the commercial district to be?" asks Ritter. "Unless we have a plan and work toward it, it will be a failure."

"Do you think tourism in Carmel Valley should be encouraged or discouraged?"

"Carmel Valley is a beautiful place. More people ought to know about it, but something has to be done about the bottleneck at the mouth of the valley to allow for more traffic."

— Jean Kerbey
— Realtor

"I would discourage tourism. The valley road is not that safe, plus more cars and people trying to fit into a small community would have a negative effect on the environment."

— Margaret Stoker
— Forensic lab technician

Tears

WE ARE a family of leaky faucets. Perhaps it's because so many of us are females but it even seems to rub off on the males. Toward the end of his life, my father could be caught dabbling away at a tear or two that escaped when he received a particularly sentimental card.

We hunt for the most warm-hearted cards we can find and there is a moment of pure pleasure when such a treasure is found, the perfect card with the perfect verse. It's a tradition, especially with mushy cards for my mother, to enclose a folded Kleenex, as we know it will be needed. My children do the same for me.

There are as many jokes about our crying as there are tears. When my father found himself surrounded by a whole harem of females, wife and three daughters, he dubbed us the "Rain-in-the-Face" tribe. He would admonish us to turn off the faucets when we all got going at once. There were references to flooding the house and to not having to salt our food, as our tears were dripping onto our dinner plates. He often advised us to buy stock in Kleenex.

Daddy thought maybe we had been born with some inner deformity and told us our kidneys were too close to our eyeballs. Requests to stop at gas station restrooms on trips were so frequent that he remarked our kidneys were no better than our tear ducts.

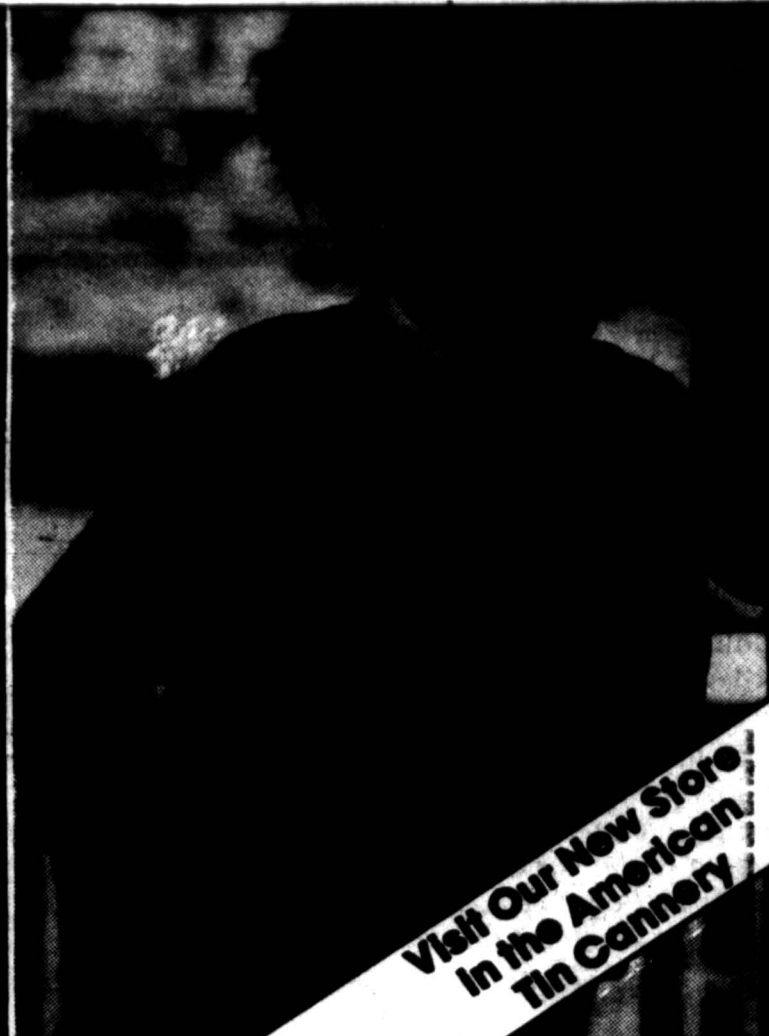

Crying at weddings or graduations is just the tip of the iceberg. We melted for sad movies, happy reunions, Queen for a Day, and even some of those touching commercials. Babies, small animals, old people, and songs could evoke a damp response.

Tears that catch in the eyelashes, huge drops rolling down the cheeks, silent streams tracing paths on dusty faces, we cry for grief, for melancholy, for joy. We are alive.

"A SENIOR LIVING COMMUNITY"

POLICE LOG

Boredom prompts youths to steal from store

TWO MALES were arrested July 11 for burglarizing a Carmel Plaza store in order to combat their boredom, Carmel police say.

Alexander Melfi III, 18, of Carmel Valley and a juvenile friend entered the Do Re Mi Music Inc. store and started placing items under their shirts and in pockets. The juvenile left the store with one piece of merchandise, police say.

A Do Re Mi employee noticed Melfi stashing things in "odd" places and confronted him, police say. Melfi put the items back and left the store.

The employee then called police and identified Melfi in a photo line-up at the police station.

Melfi was brought in to the station and eventually named the juvenile and confessed, police say, thinking that he couldn't be arrested since he did not leave Do Re Mi with any merchandise.

Police say a crime occurs when store items are concealed in uncommon carrying areas and that it is not necessary to walk out of the store with any merchandise.

All Do Re Mi items have been recovered. Melfi was taken to Monterey County Jail and the juvenile was released in citation.

Melfi told police that they were bored and decided to go into Do Re Mi to steal merchandise.

DONNA LYNN Hoover, 25, of Marina was arrested July 10, after trying to grab a woman's purse on Sixth Street between Mission and Junipero, police say.

Hoover ran off after the unsuccessful attempt. The victim then called police with a description. Police stopped Hoover after seeing her drive through Carmel.

Hoover was taken to the county jail.

CARMEL POLICE are investigating the disappearance of over $5,000 worth of computerware from Perfections, a business located at Dolores and Fifth Street.

Missing items, reported to police July 16, are a computer, printers and word processing programs.

Police say the rear window had evidence of forced entry.

AN EMPLOYEE of Carmel's La Playa Hotel reported his motorcycle stolen on July 11 after noticing it missing for two days.

Robert Knight of Carmel thought another hotel employee moved the scooter-type motorcycle from the Camino Real and Eighth Street location and waited to see if anyone knew of its whereabouts.

Police recovered the scooter, but only after it had been stripped and vandalized.

Forest couture

WHAT A week! We were regaled with the art of clothing with haute couture shown under the trees, followed by a party-by-the-Jaffee-pool in Carmel Valley; heard the progress made by the art museum, learned more about the art of photography and the French way with le pique-nique; entered the world of antiques and the world of books.

The social whirl began midweek when Saks Fifth Avenue and the Forest Theater Guild brought in New York designer Carolyn Roehm with her knock-'em-dead elegant Fall Collection, presenting them right out in the forest in Carmel.

Although Gerry Naditz, Saks manager said, "The Theater Guild committee (29 in total) should feel great pride in their accomplishment," it was Gerry who pulled off a coup. Last year Gerry started the ball rolling with Oscar de la Renta fashions shown on the second floor in Saks Carmel. This year's designer served as an assistant to Mr. de la Renta before breaking out on her own.

People came to the Forest Theater in black tie, sports jackets, glittering dresses, sweaters with slacks, and suits. And a few were seen with mink coats draped over their arms. The weather goddess that hovers over Carmel-by-the-Sea delivered an unbelievably warm evening for the Guild's Elizabethan Feast/Carolyn Roehm Fashion Show.

Although the historic opening night of the Forest Theater in the summer of 1910 drew approximately 1,000 attendees, the Feast/Fashions crowd failed to reach that number. It did, however, bring out the creme de la creme of the MP. Joan Fontaine, Peppy Moss, Gary Ibsen (in fancy summer straw hat), Hank and Rolande Ketcham, Tom and Margaret Oliver, Susan and Tom Merrill, Paula Stark, Sandy and Michael Storm, Merv and Nancy Sutton, Margarite Alvarez, John and Gene Andrews and daughter Karol, Judy Higgerson and Judy Bramble. Doris Day was unable to attend.

More than 200 guests fortified themselves with an Elizabethan Feast (by Moveable Feast), before sitting down in the Outdoor Forest Theater to find out what ladies will be wearing this coming fall. The motto of the evening: "Feast the body, feast the eyes."

While I was talking with Ms. Roehm she defined a genius as "a person who lasts five minutes longer than anyone else." After seeing the reactions of her stunning designs I would say that she has lasted more than a half-hour longer than anyone else. The color nuances were spectacular, the new shapes welcome and the textures exciting.

There was no stark white or black in the 105 styles shown. Even the bridal gown was softened to cream. The gentle color nuances she chose seemed to be inspired by minerals and the earth. Such exotic colors as tourmaline, celadon, nature-nurtured shades of stone and pebbles, sage, mauve, pale gold, copper and every shade of gray: platinum, steel, slate, charcoal and even chocolate and cognac.

Welcome shapes were unconstructed shoulders, pyramid-like ponchos, flaring jackets, A-line skirts. Quilted leather, feathered cuffs and Daniel Boone hats qualified as new textures. Along with fabrics of wool velvet, shimmering iridescents in organzas, sheet taffetas and failles. Included were matelasse, lesage and re-embroidered chantilly, half-hidden pearls and sparklers. The slippers by Manolo Blahnik were terrific. Several local ladies arose the next morning and headed for Saks and bought several outfits. Such was the reaction to the exciting evening.

There were two local professional models joining the San Fran pros on a runway jutting up from the stage through the center aisle. The two local runway stars were Jennifer Newman and Renee Rolfs. Renee will be moving to Houston shortly to join her husband John and Jennifer will be heading for New York to add glamour to the showrooms and runways of the Big Apple.

The following evening the Guild committee members were invited to a party at the June Jaffee home high atop a hill in Carmel Valley. It was given by Saks Fifth in honor of Carolyn Roehm. 'Twas wonderful fun with wonderful food but no one brought a suit for the pool. And, no one was pushed into the water fully clothed. Such decorum.

CR was talking about a three-day AIDS benefit to be given in the Armory in New York in September. She, Calvin Klein, Ralph Lauren, Oscar and others are participating. There is talk that a private or chartered plane will head for the New York airport for the Big AIDS fund-raiser. We shall wait and see.

The art of clothing and the art of photography were in the forefront this past week. Red, white and blue were the color theme for the MP Museum of Art's annual luncheon. After all, the luncheon celebrating a productive year was held on Bastille Day.

Museum members and guests went to the Monterey Beach Hotel to hear the featured speaker, photographer Morley Baer. Mr. Baer said he became intrigued with California through his grandfather, who drove to California every year in his Hupmobile. Each time he returned to Toledo, Ohio he told his grandson all about his visit to the west. In 1938 Morley made his first trip to California in order to meet photographer Edward Weston.

After World War II, he decided that this state is where he would like to live. He prefers to let his photos speak for him instead of talking about himself. "I believe that the art describes the artist," he said prior to showing slides of his work.

Mr. Baer donated 80 gelatin silver prints to the MP Museum this past year and at present he is conducting the "Ansel Adams Photography Workshop" at Stevenson School.

Jo Farb Hernandez (museum director), and Patricia Totten (board president), spoke about the progress made by the art museum in the fiscal year ending June 30 despite the deficit caused by the October earthquake. Considerable revenue was lost both by La Mirada (reduced attendance), and the museum gift shop.

NEW YORK designer Carolyn Roehm (left), attended the showing of her fall fashions at the Carmel Forest Theater. She was joined by Theresa Newman, Ms. Roehm's manager Hank Waecherle, Gerry Naditz, manager of Saks Fifth Avenue, and Peter Newman, president of the Forest Theater Guild.

THESE FOUR ladies were involved in promoting the Forest Theater Guild's fund-raiser for the apprenticeship program: Marilyn Anton, Artie Early, Laurie Hall and Joan Fontaine.

ON THE Forest Theater Guild committee for the feast and fashion show were Mr. and Mrs. Hank Ketcham and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Oliver.

The good news: an addition to La Mirada is in the planning stages. A new gallery designed by internationally known architect Charles Moore will be constructed to house the Armin Hansen collection donated by Mrs. Justin Dart and the family of the late Justin Dart.

More good news. The renovation of the second-floor galleries and

JENNIFER NEWMAN of Pebble Beach showed one of the iridescent evening wraps designed by Carolyn Roehm and shoes by Manolo Branik at Forest Theater Guild fund-raiser. (Christopher Hulse photos.)

SONDRA MEYROSE, Rhonda Williams, Judy Higgerson, Margarite Alvarez, and Angie Kraus, all supporters of the Forest Theater Guild.

CAROLYN ROEHM applauded the models who showed off her fashions, including local model Renee Rolfs (far right), and the last model to tread the runway showing a bridal gown (center).

OUT FOR a night of fun and fashion at the Forest Theater were Charlie Keeley, Nancy and Merv Sutton, Terry Durney and Bridgett Hildebrand.

art storage areas has been completed. The Fifty Families (50-50 Endowment Drive), was instigated to help meet operating costs and the superb E. Charlton Fortune Exhibit is currently on tour, which brings in more income for the non-profit museum.

The museum staff is backed by the largest number of volunteers of any museum — 1,000 volunteers who gave over 137,000 hours last year. The support of the volunteers is essential for raising funds through the Festival of Trees, Better-Than-Usual-Sale and the Docent Program both at the museum and at La Mirada. They are necessary in the educational programs offered by Museum on Wheels. Creative Response in the schools and the Migrant Education project "Learning to Read Through the Arts."

Along with President Totten other officers are Harry C. Lewis, Mrs. Philo Holland and Mrs. Norman Schultz as vice-presidents, Mrs. Roger Bailey and Mrs. Gordon Holm secretary and treasurer. Newly elected board members are Mrs. Carl Nielsen, Mrs. George Dietterle, Mrs. Robert Rodden and Hewitt Clark.

On Bastille Day-plus-one, "Ooh La La Las" were uttered as guests of the SPCA Auxiliary came to Le Pique-nique French-style on the sunny patio and terraces of the Carmel Valley home of Gerald and Carol Lee Owens.

Guests who came from Carmel, Pebble and Monterey drove out of the fog into welcome sunshine. French flags were furling from a pyramid of French breads on red and white checkered tablecloths with blue napkins. Thus, another festal red-white-blue occasion.

Al fresco dining menu offered pate, ragout and poulet roti to the French tunes of Marty Bartoli's accordion. It was great fun!

Back in the fog in Pacific Grove Sunday afternoon Tupper Ansel Blake told me that as a youngster growing up in Santa Clara County it took him a long time to return home from school each day. He couldn't resist seeking out and observing every bird and animal that he could find.

Years later, after becoming a commercial photographer, his childhood longing to see birds and nature surfaced again. This return to nature has made him one of the leading wildlife photographers in the country.

Once again, it took him a long time to return home with the photographs for "Tracks In The Sky" that are currently on exhibit at the PG Museum of Natural History. In fact, he traveled for three years from the Arctic to Central America.

The "Tracks" show and book follow his award-winning book Wild California, and number of awards including the 1985 Ansel Adams Award. Incidentally, Tupper's middle name came from his father, so there is no connection between it and Mr. Adams.

When Tupper Ansel brought his thousands of photos of the migratory habits of waterfowl and land animals to the California Academy of Science, Madeleine Graham designed the show for him. Madeleine not only fell in love with the photos but also with the photographer as well. She is now Mrs. Tupper Blake.

Peter Steinhart, noted naturalist writer, wrote the text for the book documenting "Tracks." He traveled more than 30,000 miles interviewing more than 150 people.

Part of the support for fieldwork was given by the local Marshall Foundation, the S.D. Bechtel, Jr. Foundation and Dean Witter Foundation. The exhibit runs through Aug. 12.

The Book Fair with 50 dealers that was held Sunday was organized by Artie Early to benefit The Child Abuse Fund of the Family Resource Center. It came just when needed most. It seems that the State of CA is way overdue in adopting this year's budget and the Family Resource Center, YWCA, Rape Crisis Center and the Domestic Violence Prevention are sadly hurting. These are the agencies that serve the needs of women and children and they are in dire straits. Calls to the governor, your assemblyman and state senator will be appreciated. This core funding is vital.

Double thanks for proceeds from the Book Fair with its Irish treasure, a replica of The Books of Kells.

Business was brisk at the oldest antique show on the MP. St. Mary's-by-the-Sea Church in Pacific Grove offered quality antiques for collectors and served refreshments in the church garden.

This year the show was dedicated to the late Jack Keller and Grace Elliott, both antique exhibitors since the show's beginning in 1957. If you missed it, you will be able to catch the Hospice show in early September. But you will have to wait a year for the return to St. Mary's.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

For the majority of Americans, retirement doesn't mean pulling up stakes and migrating to other climes. More than 60 percent of retirees stay put, according to Henry Wallfesh, a retirement advisor. About eight percent move to another house in the same town. Less than 12 percent make the big change of moving to another state. One out of three retirees gets involved in new interests and 44 percent take advantage of their new free time by taking up old interests again. Volunteer work attracts 23 percent.

Says 90-year-old Susanne Barstad, "I figured you're never too old to learn. If you want to try, I've always had a curiosity about trying new things." The network for seniors was founded by Mary Furlong, an associate professor at the University of San Francisco, who says: "Older adults have a great deal of wisdom to share. If we give them access to these tools — we as a society stand to learn a great deal."

All things to all men

From July 8, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone

There should be 100 statues in the Statuary Hall in the Capitol, Washington, D.C. — two from each state in the union. But at the last count there were only 91.

We can rejoice in the fact that California picked our Padre Junipero Serra, who chose to live and die and be buried just a mile south of here at his favorite Mission San Carlos del Rio Carmelo.

Saint Paul admonished missionaries to be like himself — "all things to all men." With Padre Serra, there are other missionaries enthroned in honor in our Hall of Fame.

One hundred seven years ago in 1875, Pere Jacques Marquette explored the Father Waters, the Mississippi. He represents the State of Wisconsin and has the dubious honor of having a railway, a city, a county and a diocese named after himself.

In 1965, Arizona chose Padre Eusebio Kino and Hawaii picked the leper Father Damien of Molokai in 1969. Just one year ago, the state of Washington chose the first nun and the fifth woman — Mother Joseph — who from 1856 until 1902, was a one-woman Department of Health, Education and Welfare, who founded schools, hospitals, orphanages, homes for the aged and Indian schools throughout the entire Northwest.

Statues are not made for the dead but rather for us, the living, so that we may look upon them and be inspired by their lives, and be motivated to become more like them in serving others.

These five have disproved the cynical observance of the former British Prime Minister Tanley Baldwin who said in Parliament before World War II:

"The Halls of Fame are open wide
And they are always full.
Some go in by the door called push
And some by the door called pull."

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Odds and sods

ODDS AND sods on the peninsula entertainment scene and bits and pieces from a critic's notebook:

The music scene on the Monterey Peninsula seems to get stranger and stranger by the week. First The Club of Monterey drops its policy of presenting live music on Thursday nights, then Doc Ricketts' Lab picks up the slack and starts to book "name" acts into that intimate venue (which lately has seen Jerry Jeff Walker, Barnaby Wilde, Walter Trout and Lydia Pense and Cold Blood).

It was a bold move by Doc's Kelly Leonard, but the boldest move may come this Monday, July 23 when Doc's will present — and I'm not making this up — Kris Kristofferson. Yes, the singer-songwriter-actor and part-time Highwayman (with Willie and Waylon and company), responsible for Me and Bobby McGee and other hits.

Kristofferson and his six-piece band will do two shows at 8:30 and 11 p.m. with no opener. Tickets are $15 each and are available in advance from Doc's (on Cannery Row in the carousel building), or at the door on the night of the show, if there are any left — Doc's isn't that big, Kristofferson is. The real trick will be to see how they fit Kris and his band on that minuscule thing they call a stage at Doc's. It will, however, be a great opportunity to see a "big name" act up-close and personal.

As for the aforementioned Pense, she and her band blow into town tonight (Thursday, July 19), at Doc's, with a 9:30 kickoff and two sets. Pense certainly knows how to belt out a song as evidenced in her hits I'm a Good Woman, Down to the Bone, I Just Want to Make Love to You, and You Got Me Hummin'. She also has a crack band backing her, including former Starship drummer Donnie Baldwin and a horn section.

STEVE SIPPEL of local favorites Lovers & Strangers dropped by an "unfinished" copy of the group's new tape, as yet untitled and in a somewhat "raw" form.

But the gritty vocals of Ray Bertolino are unmistakable, as is the spare Edge-like guitar work of Sippel and driving rhythm section of Kevin McMullen and Shane Tyler.

Sippel said the band is still looking for some money to finish the tape and get it distributed, but before that hopes that A&M will be giving them a call soon. An A&M exec said he heard the band's excellent first tape, liked what he heard and was to get in touch, Sippel said, knocking on wood.

The new tape, while still in the rough stages, begs to be heard. It features three songs in a kind of seamless conceptual pattern, Can't Change the World, All Alone and Another Monday, all done in their trademark sound: solid bottom, ringing guitars and Bertolino's almost raspy vocals leading the way.

The tape was produced by Stevie Heger at Starlight Sound in Richmond and Dave Wellhausen Studios in San Francisco (where retro rocker Chris Isaak recently recorded).

If you want to hear the band live (highly recommended), try Cancun in The Crossroads come Saturday, July 28.

DATE TO put on your calendar: Monday, Aug. 13.

That's when Austin's raucous Fabulous Thunderbirds make their almost-yearly appearance at The Catalyst in Santa Cruz. This time the 'Birds have a new guitarist, original guitarist Jimmy Vaughn having flown the coop to form his own band. But the band managed to enlist none other than Duke Robillard, formerly of that rockin' New Hampshire band, Roomful of Blues. That makes three alumni of Roomful on the 'Birds, including bassist Preston Hubbard and drummer Fran Christina.

So that now leaves Kim Wilson as the sole original member of the band. But Wilson was always the heart of this band, so there probably won't be much lost in the transition. The Fabulous Thunderbirds have always been one of the heartiest partying blues bands in the land and much of that has been due to Wilson's vocals and phenomenal harmonica work. Check 'em out, but get tickets ASAP, they always sell out The Cat — and why do you think that is?

And as long as you're marking your calendars, put that big red pen on Monday, Aug. 6 and circle it twice. That's when Al Green (The Rev. Al Green to you), will hold forth at the Pacific Grove Middle School Auditorium. Yes, you heard me right, PG Middle School. First Kris Kristofferson at Doc Rickett's, then Al Green at PG Middle School. What's next? Bon Jovi at The Whispers Lounge?

Al Green is one of the finest soul singers to ever to grace the face of the earth and is responsible for such R&B classics as Let's Stay Together, I'm Still in Love With You, Tired of Being Alone, Look What You Done For Me, and Love and Happiness. Now the eight-time Grammy winner can add great gospel singer to his list.

Tickets, at $16.50 in advance, $18.50 at the door, with children 7 to 12 at $10, are available at a variety of locations on the peninsula, including Center Stage Ticketing. Information's at 899-3950.

Wacky ties welcomed at KAZU summer dance party

By MAC McDONALD

PUBLIC RADIO station KAZU and The Monterey County AIDS Project are fit to be tied this summer ... but it's all in fun.

The two non-profits are joining forces to present three rockin' rhythm and blues bands for the third annual Summer Dance Party, set for 8 p.m. Friday, July 20 at the Monterey Sheraton. Theme for this year's event is ties... the widest, wackiest or wildest ties you can dig out from the dark recesses of your closet. There'll be prizes for the best ties in three different categories, with the top prize a dinner for two at ...Beau Thai restaurant (cute).

Bands set to play include the ever-popular local favorites, The Fabulous Bagtones, Paul Durkett and the Troublemakers, and Ken Arconti and the Blowtop Blues Band, the latter two coming off recent well-received performances at the Monterey Bay Blues Festival.

Proceeds from the event benefit the community-supported radio station based in Pacific Grove and the AIDS Project, with tickets at $7 in advance and $10 at the door. Advance sales are advised because last year's event drew 500 people to the Sheraton. Call KAZU at 375-7275 for tickets or information.

Opening the show at 8 will be Paul Durkett and the Troublemakers out of the Santa Cruz-San Jose area. Durkett had the crowds dancing at both the annual Chomp & Stomp fund-raiser in Aptos and the Monterey Bay Blues Festival.

The Fabulous Bagtones, famed for their New Year's Eve parties at Monterey's Veterans Hall, feature a colorful cast of characters (who all hold a variety of day jobs), who get together to play only on special occasions or when the mood strikes. They play a happy amalgam of roots rock, R&B and rockin' blues, from their doo-wop of Dion's Runaround Sue to the retro-rock of Mustang Sally.

Headliner Ken Arconti is one of the most respected blues guitarists on the Central Coast; he and his crack band play regularly at the Sheraton's own Monterey Bay Club, as well as larger venues such as Slim's in San Francisco and The Catalyst in Santa Cruz and at a variety of blues festivals, including the peninsula's own.

Arconti is also bound to show up with his guitar in tow on his nights off wherever another blues band is playing in the area; he recently jammed with Terry Hanck & the Soulrocker at The Club and with Coco Montoya (Albert Collins' guitar player), at O.T.'s in Santa Cruz. Have guitar will travel.

Tickets for the event are also available at Center Stage Ticketing in Monterey, Bookworks in Pacific Grove, and Do Re Mi in Carmel.

MUSIC CORNER

By Nathalie Plotkin

Opening concerts of the 53rd Carmel Bach Festival

OVER THE YEARS since 1935, the second half of July has become synonymous locally with the Carmel Bach Festival. It has offered and fulfilled a promise of great musical enjoyment to its audiences. This annual celebration of Johann Sebastian Bach, the undisputed master of the Baroque era, evoked all the customary excitement and enthusiasm for this valued and much imitated musical institution.

This year marks Maestro Sandor Salgo's 35th anniversary as Music Director of the Festival. One is amazed at the energy and dedication he brings to an undertaking he has worked on for approximately half a lifetime. During this period he has fostered great growth in quality and under his stewardship, the Festival has expanded to its present three-week length and its diversity of content, providing great, well-loved music in polished, usually reliably professional performances. These give great pleasure to a major audience. After all, only reviewers are required to attend concerts. Ticket purchasers have a choice and they have chosen to come to the Festival year after year from far and wide.

FOR THE FIRST concert Monday night, Salgo chose to forego a traditional opening night hallmark. One doesn't only expect the heralding brass music in the courtyard before the concert, but always a major choral work and sometimes even two. Instead, all six Brandenburg Concertos were performed.

Bach made the concertos into a treatise on the concerto grosso form and explored its potential in an all-but-scientific manner. Each one calls for a different orchestral mix and a different number of players. The result is an encyclopedic survey of instrumental usage as understood in early 18th century Germany.

In the first, third and sixth concertos, the orchestra is composed of evenly balanced choirs which toss themes about among themselves conversationally, only occasionally giving way to a soloist. These are almost orchestra concertos.

The second, fourth and fifth ones are concerti grossi, featuring a concertino of three or four instruments against an accompanying group (ripieno). Here Bach liked to have one concertino member as leader, playing a more varied and technically exacting part.

Maestro Salgo has evolved his own order of performance, ignoring the published order after he opened the evening with a delightfully spirited rendition of the first one. The orchestral tone was clean and precise. Violinist Mark Volkert and oboist Robert Morgan made a fine passion aria out of the adagio. The remaining movements were a suite of appealing dances, decked out in intriguing instrumental combinations.

The dark colored strains of the sixth concerto, scored for two violas, two gambas, cello, bass and harpsichord had a chamber quality. Violists Paul Neubauer and Simon Oswell were excellently matched and played with great skill, awareness and refinement. Cellist Ruth Stienon was strong in support but the gambas were almost unheard against the modern stringed instruments.

The fifth concerto featured a concert grand-sized harpsichord played excellently by James Richman, plus sterling contributions by flutists Damian Bursill-Hall and violinist Mark Volkert.

In the second movement the trio of soloists plus cellist Ruth Stienon played with sensitive balance and refined tone. The sparkling canonic chase of the finale was very well achieved.

After the intermission the fourth concerto was played with Bursill-Hall and Julie McKenzie, flutes, and Mark Volkert, violin, making up the concertino. Here again, a thoroughly professional and polished performance was given. Volkert traversed the many cadenza-like passages of his part with flair and assurance. This is a work with a particular charm and it was given its full due by these fine musicians.

The second concerto is noted for its brilliant "piccolo" trumpet part and Wolfgang Basch successfully skirted its pitfalls most of the way, but an ill-considered tempo in the finale had him teetering on the brink rather uncomfortably. The rest of the concertino consisting of Bursill-Hall, Volkert, Stienon, Morgan and Richman were all in fine form.

The only concerto left was the third one, scored for divided violins, violas, cellos and continuo. The full choir of festival strings played with a full, ringing tone, rolling themes back and forth in mellow waves of tone. Harpsichordist John Toenjes played a brief improvisational interlude as a bridge and the final Gigue swung along, rollicking and dancing to bring the evening to an enthusiastically applauded close.

To sum it all up, six Brandenburg Concertos are a lot of music and happily for the listener, this concert showed no opening night problems. Everyone appeared to know what they were doing. They sounded as if this is music they enjoyed playing and Salgo looked as if he enjoyed going over familiar territory.

WITH A STRONG sense of deja vu, I watched the goings on at the Tuesday night performance. Last year the stage crew was an integral and very important ingredient in the evening's entertainment and so, this year, the routine was repeated and the waiting audience experienced yet another kind of choreographed movement. The Baroque dancing is a delightful addition to the festival, but it adds a complexity to the staging which has not yet been well worked out.

The Bach "Magnificat in D," BWV 243, is a great festive choral work, full of joy and exultation. It makes a wonderful program opener when its celebratory spirit is captured. Though the Sunset stage was overflowing with instrumentalists and choruses, that initial burst of happy sound was rather wishy-washy and lacked much needed impetus and coordination. In later sections, the chorus and chorale did somewhat better and the "Omnes Generationes" was sung with strength and unity of purpose.

Soprano Rachel Rosales revealed a lovely silken voice in "Quia Respexit." Bass Michael Gallup's aria "Quia Fecit" was sung with resonance over a cello and organ accompaniment which was jaunty and gay. Tenor David Gordon's light and lyrical voice was used with effortless, refined ease in "Deposuit" and his duet with mezzo soprano Kathryn Cowdrick was a sensitive blend of vocalism.

Then, after an intermission which lasted well over half an hour due to the necessity of clearing the stage of all the chorus and orchestra paraphernalia, the New York Baroque Dance Company performed the ballet "Les Elemens" by Jean-Fery Rebel. Composed in 1737, only seven years after the Bach "Magnificat," it is in an entirely different world. Airy and amusing, the delicately courtly formal movements have charm and elegance.

"Les Elemens" includes among its components an overture entitled "Chaos" which bears a strong resemblance in its planned dissonances to what Haydn wrote in the "Creation" to express the same idea about 80 years later. The dancers represent air, water, earth, fire and, to sum it all up, love.

Wearing costumes of the period, the dancers were all graceful and skillful. The steps and attitudes are all familiar as basic ballet movement and the various sections were a delight to watch as the charming plot was brought to its fulfillment by L'Amour as danced earnestly by 12-year-old Heaven Lee Mangold, a Carmel dance student who was invited to appear with the company.

To round off the evening, pianist Janina Fialkowska was heard in the Mozart "Piano Concerto in B Flat," K. 595. Written at the beginning of Mozart's last year of life, he played it at his final appearance as a pianist in Vienna. The music, while in a major key, has a wistful quality and the subdued tempo of the first movement underlined this impression. Fialkowska's playing was fluid, graceful and cool. In the cadenza some dramatic contrast was apparent.

The Larghetto elicited lovely delicate pianism from the soloist. She played with understanding and sensitivity, making poetic and eloquent musical statements. The Allegro is a Rondo with a light-hearted gigue theme and again the playing was exactly what it should have been. The orchestra were fine collaborators and the results were memorable.

Dining on Domenico's Cioppino; Our secret Italian ritual is no longer a secret.

"...I ordered cioppino, my friend, calamari. We were both pleased with our meals and the Italian white wine we chose to accompany it...This dinner at Domenico's was my first on the wharf. Previously, I've gone out of my way to avoid dining on the wharf, assuming the restaurants served mediocre food to tourists who would never return again. We were pleasantly surprised and I will certainly return and recommend Domenico's."

As quoted by Beverly Dubrin

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

Street theater

ONE OF THE nicest things about Monterey in the summer is TheatreFest, that combination of events presented by GroveMont Theater that infuses Custom House Plaza and the Memory Garden during June, July and August. From Thursday through Sunday, these events (all free except for the Big Top productions) are a wealth of entertainment for all ages. Seeing parents explaining plot to their children, seeing children "get the point" of a comedy routine before their parents — these are only some of the touching aspects of audience watching in such a setting. The outdoor events play on Saturdays and Sundays (Big Top attractions play Thursdays through Sundays). The offerings each weekend day start at 11 a.m. in the plaza with:

FAIRY TALE THEATER

As a relief to those cheap technoid cartoons next Saturday, take the kids to see those old classics: Jack and the Beanstalk, Rumpelstiltskin, The Fisherman and His Wife, and that favorite of political commentators of all ages, The Emperor's New Clothes. For children to see live, well-acted fables is therapeutic. Seasoned GroveMont actors like Kevin Hanstick, Mark Heckman, Julie Hughtett and others make these tales come alive. John Rousseau adapted these old classics into versions that we can relate to today, so much so that the adults in attendance regularly get swept up in them. At 1 p.m. in the plaza is the innovative

HUMAN CHESS GAME

This bit of stage business is the clever combination of a classic chess game and a dramatic enactment. The pieces represent historical and popular characters from all eras. As each piece is taken, a confrontation or some bit of treachery is enacted. Directed by Stephen Moorer, this event has a life of its own and typically evolves during the course of the run. The dialogue between "pieces" is riddled with puns and double entendres. The continuous action keeps everyone on their toes. This is a must-see event if you've never seen it before. At 2 p.m. in the plaza is performed. This "pocket opera" by Pergolesi was written in 1731 is a one-act opera in two scenes. GroveMont stalwarts John Newkirk, Eleanor Wyld and Kevin Hanstick are the Music Master, Vocal Student and Impresario in that order. The duo of Wyld and Hanstick perform regularly in this format and are a treat to watch. Newkirk plays well with them in this delightful ensemble vocal piece. The production is a presentation of the Monterey Opera Association, directed by Kelley Alexander. Musical direction is by Barney Hulse.

THE MUSIC MASTER

Next the action moves to the "Memory Garden" adjacent to Custom House Plaza. There may be some who have not as yet seen this delightful walled garden. Since entry is limited, they may assume that it is off-limits. Not so. At 3 p.m. pass through the entry corridor lined with foliage and enter the garden with magnolia trees, arches, a fountain and flowers galore. The next three plays will be performed here. At 3 p.m. the

by the Roman playwright Plautus. The plot involves a narcissistic Roman soldier (Kevin Caston) who is manipulated by his clever slave (Michael Jacobs) to give up his concubine (Linda Hearn) in hopes of winning a Patrician Lady (Kathy Deskin-Jacobs) who is actually a courtesan being paid to go through this charade so the concubine can get her freedom. Caston plays the conceited trooper with flamboyant gestures and poses that are just what Roman comedy called for. He constantly flirts with women in the audience and shares innuendos all around. The other memorable performance was that of Kathy Deskin-Jacobs. Her courtesan-become-lady is full of comedic possibilities and she exploits them well. Director Marcia Gambrell Hovick rightly plays up the broad humor in this piece to give it original period flavor. At 4:30, hold onto your seats, here comes by Moliere. Now this is very special. One-act Moliere plays don't get performed as often as the full-length ones so this is a special event. Doubling our pleasure are some of the finest comic performances in recent memory. The plot is simple. Fifty-three-year-old Sganerelle (John Stanley) has been smitten by young Dorimene (Cathy Fabre). However, he is beginning to have doubts about this May-December romance so he consults two philosophers and some Gypsy women about the rightness of his actions. He concludes from their evasive or off-the-wall advice that he'd better not marry. We find out Dorimene does have a young lover and is heard saying that she is marrying for money. The Bride's father and brother hold Sganerelle to a point of honor and punish him for his change of mind. I won't spoil the ending.

THE FORCED MARRIAGE

The character of Pancrace is played by Michael Jacobs and is one of the funniest renditions of a crazed guru you're likely to see in a long while. He raves, he rants, he's bespattered with clay. He's totally out of touch. The effect on the audience when he appears is startling. John Stanley provides the other memorable performance in the piece. As the wary bachelor attracted to a girl less than half his age, he is smart enough to suspect that this may leave him with empty pockets and a pair of horns. He goes to his counselors with trepidation. He writhes with uncertainty between his lust and his loot. Stanley makes Sganerelle's plight so palpable that, even though we laugh, we really feel for him. This is a very funny play. Now for the big stuff, at 5:30

MICHAEL JACOBS tricks Kevin Caston in the TheatreFest staging of "The Swaggering Soldier" by Plautus.

AS YOU LIKE IT

by Shakespeare set in Monterey in 1873. And in Salinas. And in Los Padres Forest. It is said to be freely adapted from the original and so it is. So much so, we might call this Shakespeariana — something inspired by Shakespeare. However, the bard is robust enough for just about any experiments. Director Rosamond Goodrich has infused the production with much action and authentic trappings of the Old West. The plot in a nutshell. Orlando and Rosalind are mistreated at court and must flee the realm. Orlando flees to the forest because his older brother intends to kill them and keep his inheritance. Rosalind is banished and also flees. For some protection, she disguises herself as a man. She and her friend Celia and the court fool Touchstone all flee to the forest. Orlando finds forest refuge in the court of the banished duke in exile and spends his time writing love poems to Rosalind and posting them on trees. Rosalind finds them and, since she is dressed as a man, decides to test Orlando's love. The evil brother pursues Orlando and is saved from death by him. He then has a change of heart about his brother and also falls in love with Celia. At the end four couples wed simultaneously: Orlando/Rosalind, Oliver/Celia, Touchstone/Audrey and Silvius/Phoebe but only after much sorting out of feelings and identities.

Dorian Ellis steals the show in the part designed for showstealing — Rosalind. The charm of her female side and the humor of her male disguise came out beautifully under Ms. Ellis's efforts. Michael Jacobs does a very nice job with Touchstone who also has some great lines. Orlando's sidekick, Adam, is an old Indian who has served the family for many moons. Brian Huntington brought a grace and nobility to the role that was truly touching. Jeff Heyer's Jacques was well realized in a wry rendition that the audience liked. There is not enough space to comment on all the performances. After you leave the Memory Garden and have a quick dinner, it's 8:30 and time for which opens on July 19th at 8:30 p.m. in the Big White Tent right next to Custom House Plaza. After that, call it a day. You've earned a rest.

CALDECOTT MEDAL winner Peter Parnall produced "Dove," a pen, ink and watercolor illustration, for "I'm in Charge of Celebrations." The children's book was published in 1986 by Scribner's.

"LONG AGO" by Cyndy Szekeres was created for the 1977 children's book, "Piggies in Bed with Measels." These and other illustrations are featured at the newly opened Bush Galleries in the Barnyard, Carmel.

Children's book illustrators featured at Bush Galleries

A NEW art gallery collects the images of which childhood dreams are made.

Newly opened in the Barnyard is Bush Galleries, a showcase for original artwork from children's literature.

More than 100 children's illustrators are represented by Bush Galleries, among them Marcia Brown, Trina Schart Hyman, Peter Parnall and Ed Young. These and several other artists featured by Bush Galleries are winners of the Caldecott Medal, the highest award given annually for children's book illustration.

A grand opening reception is set 4 to 7 p.m. Friday, July 20 at 3718 The Barnyard, Carmel.

Bush Galleries was begun in 1984 in the Vermont farmhouse of Emily and Sam Bush. Emily Bush became interested in the artwork in children's books through her parttime job as a librarian. And, the couple raised 10 children, making them familiar with literature for young audiences.

Bush Galleries, in addition to its new Carmel location, also maintains a gallery at 14 Dedham St. in Dover, Mass. More than 3,000 pieces are in the gallery inventory, illustrations rendered in pen and ink, watercolor and paper relief.

Books are also for sale at the Carmel location, many of them out-of-print editions that feature artwork by the artists represented in the gallery. Manager of the new Carmel gallery is Carolin Doran.

Bush Galleries is open from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily, Sundays from noon to 5 p.m. The Barnyard is located off Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

Why Hanna's Skirt Won't Stay Down

The Big Sur Players have revived their staging of Tom Eyen's Why Hanna's Skirt Won't Stay Down.

Set in a Coney Island funhouse, the play focuses on Hanna O'Brien (played by Kim Candler), who takes tickets at a movie house and spends most of her spare time relaxing over a "breeze-hole" at the park. The tragic comedy's plot contains many twists and turns.

Mark C. Hudson directs the production. In addition to Candler, the cast features Jeremy Slate, Erin Gaffil and J. Perham Slate. Candler, Gaffil and Jeremy Slate are all founding members of the Big Sur Players, which is a non-profit theater company founded last year for the purpose of bringing cultural events to the Big Sur area.

Final performances are set at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, July 19, and at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, July 24-26.

The show is presented at the River Inn Resort in Big Sur. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $8 for the show-only, or $25 for show plus dinner. For reservations, call 667-2700 or 625-5255.

Monterey Bay TheatreFest

The county's highest attendance cultural event, the Monterey Bay TheatreFest, offers both full-scale shows and admission-free performances.

TheatreFest has several settings. Largest is the "Big Top" tent located in the Upper Custom House Plaza at the top of Fisherman's Wharf on the waterfront in Monterey. Here showgoers can see Man of La Mancha through Aug. 12. Admission is charged for Big Top performances, which are listed separately in On Stage.

TheatreFest also comes to life on its Main Stage, located adjacent to the Pacific House in the Lower Custom House Plaza. Here productions will be staged Saturdays and Sundays through Aug. 5.

The Main Stage schedule begins with the following "Fairy Tale Theater" productions:

11 a.m., The Fisherman and His Wife. This and all other Fairy Tale Theater offerings are adapted and directed by John Rousseau, featuring "fractured" fairy tales with modern twists.

11:15 a.m., Rumpelstiltskin.

Noon, The Emperor's New Clothes.

12:30 p.m., Jack and the Beanstalk.

At 1 p.m. weekends on the Main Stage, TheatreFest presents the sixth annual Human Chess Game. Stephen Moorers directs the improvisational stage combat production, an audience favorite.

At 2 p.m., the Monterey Opera Association takes the Main Stage with The Music Master, a comic opera sung in English. It is directed by Kelly Alexander.

Admission-free productions are also presented weekends in the Memory Garden, located behind the Pacific House. The schedule for the Memory Garden is as follows:

3 p.m., The Swagging Soldier, a farce by the ancient Roman playwright Plautus, is directed by Marcia Hovick.

4:30 p.m., The Forced Marriage, by Moliere, is directed by Norman Stottmeister.

5:30 p.m., As You Like It, is updated to an Early Monterey setting amidst the adobe walls of the garden, and is directed by Rosamond Goodrich.

Fiber artist introduces her work during lecture

VICKIE HU Poirier, a textile artist from Las Cruces, New Mexico, will be showing her recent works with a talk and slide show at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 22 at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove.

Poirier, an artist that was recently featured in the July issue of Southwest Art, has exhibited in New Delhi as well as galleries in several American cities. Her latest, a six-by-12-foot tapestry entitled "Family Reunion, New Mexico Style" will be shown at this exhibit along with other works.

This creation has recently hung in the Governor's Gallery at the State Capitol in Santa Fe. She has been commissioned to create a large tapestry presented to the All China Women's Federation at the First Sino-American Conference on Women's Issues, held in Beijing. The tapestry is titled "Holding Up Half the Sky", which is the conference's subtitle.

Many of her works are dedicated to the status of women. Her themes follow her goals to "cheer the hearts and plant seeds of unity and harmony between people."

"I want to bring together cultures, to show that we're all different but if we consult together we can create a whole new world. Respect for differences is essential. Our art — humankind's art — can be a universal art."

Admission is free and the public is invited.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Great tenorman

NEWSBREAK: Jimmy Lyons has signed Stan Getz Quintet to play Monterey Jazz Festival in September. Jimmy says the great tenorman's unit will perform in the fairgrounds arena on Sunday afternoon (9/23) — after the High School All-Stars. More about Stan next time.

UPDATE: Mary von Saltza was all smiles when we chatted about her plans for the Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club. She announced a general facelift (reported here last week) along with decor changes emphasizing jazz. Just a few days later she resigned as room manager. What happened?

Personnel changes occur quite regularly for this area's hotels. Any tourist-based economy contains constant pressures and hunts that seek successful formulas. Mary said she felt "left behind" by developments, and questioned "whether the jazz format can survive."

The Sheraton has a new food and beverage boss — Mario Baretti. This gentleman told me over the phone: "We're a jazz club; we're going to stay that way." He identified Jack Mahoney, former assistant manager of the 10th floor restaurant, as the new Monterey Bay Club overseer. Jack'll handle bookings.

Mary had said live bands would be offered in Three Flags Cafe (right across the lobby) during next month's Monterey Bay Club renewal (8/1-9). Revised word: no groups working Three Flags. When musical action picks up again (8/10), that'll happen in Monterey Bay Club.

The Sheraton's public relations office has announced jazz and blues throughout August — John Cortes Quartet, Roger Eddy, Don Pendergrass, Monterey Vocal Jazz Ensemble, Jackie Coon with Ed Erickson, Gail Dobson, Kenny Stahl, Kitty Margolis, Ken Arconti's Blowtop Band, Terry Hanck and his Soulrokers. At this writing, the schedule for September had not been received.

Jazz pianist Larry Dunlap and vocalist spouse Bobbe Norris were slated Thursday night (7/19). Others: Kevin Feeney and What's Up (7/20-21), Bob Phillips and Terry Miller (7/22), Don Pendergrass (7/23), Jack and Ed Show (7/24), Neon (7/25), monster pianist Ed Kelly plus drummer Steve Robertson (7/26).

Meanwhile, other places banked on the drawing power of jazz. One good example: Shanty Malone's added Monterey Vocal Jazz Ensemble on Thursday evenings. Papa Jake and selected pals play there Saturday through Tuesday nights. Cancun, The Firehouse, Highlands Inn, Spanish Bay Inn, Kiewel's, Pebble Beach Lodge (and so on) — all maintain weekly acts.

KIMBALL'S EAST presents a major jazz photography display through August. It's called The Jazz Image and showcases pictures by Lee Tanner, William Claxton, Herb Snitzer, Charles Stewart, Jerry Stoll — five of the very best.

BAREFOOT NIGHTS: Global Pacific Records in Sonoma issues the first CD by Barefoot, powerful percussion band out of Big Sur. The 10-track package boasts such fine musicians as David Friesen, Steve Kindler, Larry Grenadier, the flutist Sulubika, drummers including Clay Henry. Clay's described as "backbone of the group."

Barefoot takes its rhythms and improvisational approach from Africa and jazz. Members cite a long tradition of Big Sur percussion — sessions at Esalen Institute started halfway through the '60s. Clay: "Hand drums have become the folk instruments of the area. We play some serious boogie music, and always hope that dancers pack the place wherever we play."

The band has dates coming up: Big Sur's River Inn on Saturday night (7/21) and The Catalyst in Santa Cruz (7/24). The latter scene will incorporate a video shoot and cost just $1 per at the door. "When we made the album," Clay went on, "there wasn't a piece of paper (for written notes) in the studio. We go for jazzlike freedom. Again, people who love to dance will experience real joy."

His Big Sur shop — Heartbeat — offers the Barefoot CD along with World Beat albums and one of the West Coast's best collections of ethnic instruments. At two o'clock on Friday afternoon (7/20), Clay Henry will visit my regular jazz show over KRML Radio. We'll talk and play originals from the album.

Vocalist Madeline Eastman's a real favorite locally. Mad-Kat Records schedules her debut feature album for release next month on CD ($15) and cassette ($10). Produced and arranged by Paul Potyten, the session employed Tom Harrell's trumpet. Also Mike Wofford (piano), Rufus Reid (bass), Vince Lateano (drums). Title: Point of Departure.

Orders may be sent now to: PO Box 253 — San Francisco — 94101-9991. Add $1.50 per item for sales tax, postage, handling.

Finally, Columbia's planning a special Tony Bennett collection in time for Christmas. Tony reviewed his 40-year output to come up with about three dozen cuts of the classic variety.

SIGHT BITES: Seaside's Jazz in the Park Series has a good show planned on Saturday afternoon (7/21). Bill Jackson Quartet plus San Francisco vocalist Denise Perrier and her trio. Laguna Grande.

Monterey Plaza Hotel's Sunday afternoon offering — Jan Deneau Quartet (7/22). Noon till four. No cover; no minimum. Brunch available.

Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz spotlights master bassist David Friesen and German guitarist Uwe Kropinski. Monday evening (7/23). Center Stage Ticketing. Coming up — Great Guitars with Charlie Byrd, Barney Kessel, Bucky Pizzarelli (7/30).

Junior Walker All-stars at The Catalyst. Friday night (7/20). Sunday evening (7/22) — Ras Posse Reggae Fest.

Kimball's East in Emeryville: Horace Silver Quintet (7/25-29), Tania Maria (8/9-11), Joe Pass with Woody Herman Big Band (8/15-19). Kimball's/San Francisco: Nat Adderley Quintet (8/8-11). The post-bop purist will be cutting his first album under a new contract with Landmark Records.

Yoshi's of Oakland reports hot items next month — John Hicks Quintet with Chico Freeman (8/7-11), flutist Dave Valentin (8/15-18), Joey DeFrancesco Quintet (8/23-25). The 20-year-old organist already has two CDs out from Columbia.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE

NUMBER MP 11409

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of DOROTHY M. HOLLIDAY, aka DOROTHY MAE HOLLIDAY.

A PETITION has been filed by LAWRENCE HOLLIDAY and DAVID HOLLIDAY in the Superior Court of California, County of Monterey.

THE PETITION requests that Lawrence Holliday be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on July 20, 1990 at 9:30 a.m. in Probate Dept. located at 1200 Agualito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Attorney for petitioner: RICHARD D. GORMAN, GERSTL GORMAN, INC., 33 Soledad Drive, Monterey, CA 93940.

Sherlock would be pleased!

Whether you are buying or selling—it's a crime to be uninformed.

Knowledge and experience are vital when investigating the real estate housing market; analyzing all possible facts and clues is imperative in arriving at a property's true value.

HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.

This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed. Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember. Only you can prevent forest fires.

Beat the Quake! Steps to Take

When an earthquake strikes

Duck, Cover and Hold

Whether you are in your home, a school classroom, a high-rise or another type of building, it is important to know how to protect yourself during an earthquake. Practice what to do during an earthquake and teach yourself and your family members to react automatically when the shaking starts. If you are outdoors when the shaking starts, get into an open area away from trees, buildings, walls and power lines. If you are indoors, follow the steps below:

DUCK

DUCK or drop down to the floor.

COVER

Take COVER under a sturdy desk, table or other furniture. If that is not possible, crouch against an interior wall and protect your head and neck with your arms. Avoid danger spots near windows, hanging objects, mirrors or tall furniture.

HOLD

If you take cover under a sturdy place of furniture, HOLD on to it and be prepared to move with it. HOLD the position until the ground stops shaking and it is safe to move.
